Have a bottle. He wears a sweater, heavy cord pants and a pair of slip-on shoes. The 2013 Irish Rep production of The Weir was nominated for a Lucille Lortel Award for Outstanding Revival. Then, Valerie reveals a startling story of her own... Conor McPherson's The Weir is a haunting evocative evening you will never forget. Too much trouble driving a herd up. Read the Performance Program Now! "by far the most impressive socially distanced theater webcast I have seen... Irish Rep is now way out in front of every other company in America when it comes to marrying technical innovation with artistic quality." – Terry Teachout, The Wall Street Journal "as close to theatrical experience as one can hope for these days. Not at all. Yeah. He turns and takes a bottle from the shelf, awkwardly prising off the top. They laugh. JACK. Yeah it's a funny one. Is the Harp one okay? Nothing comes out of the tap. a modern masterpiece." â€• Express"I am convinced that this is the best new play I've seen in years." â€• Sunday Telegraph"There is a depth in the characterisation... There is a small radio on a shelf behind the bar. There are three stools at the counter. He takes the anorak off and hangs it up. No. No I don't. I have rarely been so convinced that I have just seen a modern classic." â€• Daily Telegraph"A beautifully crafted and compassionate piece, dealing with love, loss and loneliness. It was a bit of shelter then. BRENDAN stands wiping his hands. Keeping the pressure on you. JACK comes in. The Weir is produced under the SAG -AFTRA New Media Agreement. A door, back, leads to the toilets and a yard. I'm having a bottle. JACK comes out from behind the counter. (Pause.) It's balmy enough. This new production was filmed remotely from quarantine and designed for a digital experience as part of Irish Rep's Summer Online Season in July of 2020; it is the third Irish Rep production of The Weir. BRENDAN. A counter, left, with three bar taps. He tidies up, dries glasses, JACK (derision). The spirits are not mounted, simply left on the shelf. There is a stove built into it. As he finishes this, the door at back opens. That's some wind, isn't it? But, like, Jack. The Weir was revived at the Donmar Warehouse, London, on 25 April 2013 (previews from 18 April), with the following cast: Characters JACK, fifties BRENDAN, thirties JIM, forties FINBAR, late forties VALERIE, thirties The play is set in a rural part of Ireland, North West Leitrim or Sligo. I'd say you have a right couple of worms, alright. Good for the worms. You don't use it much. Must have been against you, was it? Due to audience demand, The Weir was revived again in Irish Rep's 2015 season. The door, right, opens. (Pause.) I'm not happy about it, now mind, right? Course, they don't have a fucking clue what they're looking for, d'you know? Written by Conor McPherson Directed by Ciarán O'Reilly Starring Dan Butler, Sean Gormley, John Keating, Amanda Quaid, and Tim Ruddy In a remote country pub in Ireland, newcomer Valerie arrives and becomes spellbound by an evening of ghostly stories told by the local bachelors who drink there. It was. JACK (drinks). Checking their investments. It was against me 'til I came around the Knock. (Lifting glass.) What's with the Guinness? BRENDAN goes in behind the counter. Your man's coming in to do it in the morning. He wears a suit which looks a bit big for him, and a white shirt open at the collar. He turns to the till which he opens with practised, if uncertain, ease. Mm. You're not just trying to spite them? you know. But I know they're looking at it, all they see is new cars for the hubbies, you know? Get them vexed, ha? What about the Harp drinkers? Present day. He carries a bucket with peat briquettes. I'm, Pause. A door, right, is the main entrance to the bar. Ah yeah. It is. Brendan. Thanks to Laura Knight Keating, Richard Waterhouse, and Janice Gormley for their invaluable contribution to the filming of The Weir. There is another small table, front, with a stool or two. BRENDAN (putting peat in the stove). He takes a list of prices from beside the till and holds a pair of spectacles up to his face while he examines it. It's balmy enough. It's coming from the north. a fine piece of writing." â€• Financial Times Conor McPherson is a playwright, screenwriter and director, born in Dublin in 1971.Plays include Rum and Vodka (Fly by Night Theatre Co., Dublin); The Good Thief (Dublin Theatre Festival; Stewart Parker Award); This Lime Tree Bower (Fly by Night Theatre Co. and Bush Theatre, London; Meyer-Whitworth Award); St Nicholas (Bush Theatre and Primary Stages, New York); The Weir (Royal Court, London, Duke of York's, West End and Walter Kerr Theatre, New York; Laurence Olivier, Evening Standard, Critics' Circle, George Devine Awards); Dublin Carol (Royal Court and Atlantic Theater, New York); Port Authority (Ambassadors Theatre, West End, Gate Theatre, Dublin and Atlantic Theater, New York); Shining City (Royal Court, Gate Theatre, Dublin and Manhattan Theatre Club, New York; Tony Award nomination for Best Play); The Seafarer (National Theatre, London, Abbey Theatre, Dublin and Booth Theater, New York; Laurence Olivier, Evening Standard, Tony Award nominations for Best Play); The Veil (National Theatre); The Night Alive (Donmar Warehouse, London and Atlantic Theater, New York); and Girl from the North Country (Old Vic, London).Theatre adaptations include Daphne du Maurier's The Birds (Gate Theatre, Dublin and Guthrie Thea The spellbinding, beautifully observed hit from the master of suspenseful realism; combining superbly chilling tales of the supernatural with the hilarious banter of a small community in the heart of rural Ireland.A bar in a remote part of Ireland. He puts money in the till and takes his change. "The play of the decade... Oh yeah. Stage setting: a small rural bar. I wasn't, no. He selects a glass and goes to pour himself a pint of stout. What the hell. He goes behind the counter. Over this is a dirty anorak. This bar is part of a house and the house is part of a farm. She has a tale to tell that'll stop them all dead in their tracks.Winner of: Olivier Award for Best New Play, Evening Standard Award for Best New Playwright, Critic's Circle Award for Most Promising New Playwright.'The play of the decade... a modern masterpiece' Express'Puts one in mind of an Irish Chekhov. This is it. On the wall, back, are some old black and white photographs: a ruined abbey; people posing near a newly erected ESB weir; a town in a cove with mountains around it. I don't know. As the drink flows and the stories become increasingly frightening, it's clear that Valerie has something on her mind. It's a new barrel and everything. He pours it and leaves it on the bar to settle. BRENDAN comes in. It's the power in the tap. Were you in Carrick today? The cast was as follows: The production transferred to the Royal Court Theatre Downstairs at the Duke of York's Theatre, London, on 18 February 1998, where it played for two years with successive cast changes. With a whiff of sexual tension in the air and the wind whistling outside, what starts out as blarney soon darkens as the tales drift into the realm of the supernatural. It doesn't hurt that the play is one of the best that Irish theater - and by extension world theater- has produced in 25 years." – Joe Westerfield, Newsweek Press from our past productions of The Weir: “The Weir...invites us to re-examine the theater, and to ask ourselves what we seek from stories and those who tell them.” – The New York Times “an elegant, funny, moving distillation and celebration of the uniquely Irish way with words” – The New Yorker Special Thanks: We would like Conor McPherson and his agent Nick Marston at Curtis Brown Agency for their support of this special event. They're just vaguely... Mm. Ah, it's mild enough though. that puts one in mind of an Irish Chekhov. 'The Harp drinkers.' BRENDAN. I had the sisters over doing their rounds. An old television is mounted up in a corner. It works because one believes so intensely in the characters that one shares the experiences they talk of, because it contains at its heart a shattering event and because it demonstrates the healing potential of storytelling... He vainly tries it again and looks underneath the counter. He wipes his boots aggressively on a mat. Well, would you not switch them around and let a man have a pint of stout, no? (Pause.) At me to sell the top field. Near this is a low table with some small stools and a bigger, more comfortable chair, nearest the fire. Go on out of that. He goes to the fireplace, barely acknowledging JACK, just his voice. The local lads are swapping spooky stories to impress a young woman recently moved to the area from Dublin. There is a fireplace, right. Checking up on me.
